The course that begins with a background and history on Universal Design, continues with definitions of Barrier Free and Accessible Design as wellas theories, principles and applications
Contents of the Course	Within the course, various scaled projects are analyzed and redesigned in a "universal"way. The topics discussed in a parallel fashion with an Ergonomic base, aim to provide anelaborate understanding of designing spaces that not only accommodate and become functional for wheelchair users, but all kinds of people. Universal Design is often neglectedin design education. It is seen as something that is sterile and a compulsory feature fordisabled persons; as something that contradicts the creativity of a design project. The aimis for students to gain an understanding of the topic as an approach that is inclusive regardless of age, skill, or gender.
